SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— California voters this year will have the opportunity of aligning with any one of seven political parties.

Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan announced that seven parties had qualified for the year, including Republican, Democratic Socialist Prohibition, Progressive, Commonwealth and Communist.

In announcing the qualification of the parties, Jordan called attention to the fact that only one-third of the state's 3,000,000 eligible voters had registered so far this year and urged citizens to register at once in order to take part in the May primaries.

The state board of equalization's drive to clean up the liquor in Southern California has been continued with licenses denied to two more of the state's most pretentious night clubs.

The board refused licenses for the Clover Club, Beverly Hills, and The Dunes, Palm Springs, on the grounds of asserted gambling and other irregularities.

The board plans to meet in Los Angeles March 10 to give final consideration of its action in denying a liquor license to the Cotton Club, famous Culver City night spot.

With announcement of the resignation of James B. Holohan as worden of San Quentin prison, it was considered assured here that Warden Court Smith of Folsom prison would be named to head the state's largest penal institution.

Governor Frank F. Merriam was known to consider Smith one of the outstanding prison officials of the country and that he favored him to go to San Quentin.

Before the warden appointment will be made the governor was expected to fill two vacancies on the state board of prison directors.

Gasoline sales continue to increase steadily according to the state board of equalization which reported that January sales netted the state $3,466,642 in taxes, an increase of 15,623,617 gallons or $464,021 over the January sales of 1935.

Sales of gasoline have increased for the past 15 months with only one exception, it was reported.

Consumption of beer and wine, as indicated by collection of state taxes, also continued to increase, amounting to an average of approximately a gallon for each person in California during January. The state collected $106,547 in taxes on beer and wine last month, a slight increase over collections of January, 1935. The gallonage amounted to 5,327,325.

He said that President Roosevelt has done more for the hobo than any other President.

WEEK END BLIZZARD CLOSES HIGHWAY

Slides and Deep Snows Delay Traffic; Winter Sport Fans and Ski Contestants Delayed in Returning To Homes.

A week end blizzard, which forced the cancellation of the second day of the California Ski Association championship turnament at Tahoe City, delayed hundreds of winter sport fans and contestants in return to their homes. Snowslides along the highways added to the delay.

The highway over the Donner Summit was closed on Sunday until a convoy was taken over Sunday night when more than a hundred cars were allowed to proceed on their way after being held in town all day.

A snow, mud and rock slide on the Reno Highway near Floriston closed that highway on Friday afternoon about four o'clock and all available men were pressed into service by the highway department to clear the highway.

Many house parties were snowbound in the Lake Tahoe Region, but the highway department opened the highways to Tahoe City, Homewood and Brockway on Sunday and convoys were run in both directions from Tahoe City, rescuing stalled parties. Aside from the inconvenience of being snow in for several hours, no serious trouble was experienced. Slides between Tahoe City and Truckee impeded the progress of the convoys and delays of two hours or more were experienced in traversing the fourteen miles.

The Donner summit highway and the highway to Lake Tahoe were closed on Tuesday. Maintenance crews bucked huge drifts all Monday night to free automobiles and stages marooned between Soda Springs and the Donner summit. after the cars were freed the gates were closed.

A huge drift, the depth of which was estimated at fifty feet, covered the road halfway up the Donner grade on Monday night and the highway maintenance crews used all available equipment, including three large rotary plows, to clear away the mass of snow.

With motorists along the road awaiting their efforts, the crews bucked their plows into the drift, digging the tunnels as far as possible, then breaking them down and starting the plows through once more. It required five hours of steady toil to clear away the one large frift, and after that the trail had to be broken through the lesser drifts.

After having partially cleared the road, the crews turned their attention to the task of freeing some fifty automobiles and several stages which were marooned along the highway. The stage due at 5 o'clock Monday night from Sacramento did not reach town until 11:30 on Tuesday morning.

The Southern Pacific Company have had all of their available snow equipment here to combat the storm and their train schedule has been maintained with only slight delays.

The precipation for the three day storm was 3.79 inches, bringing the total for February to 11.69. The normal for February is 4.95. The total for the season since September 1st is 27.05, which is one inch more than precipitation for the entire year. The snow depth is now five feet two inches.

H. L. Peterson Bid Considered for New School

Bids for the new grammar school on Church Street were opened last Friday in the office of Mrs. Ella M. Austin, county superintendent of schools with R. A. Tonini and Mrs. Dan Smith of the trustees of the Truckee school district present. L. W. Hurd, architect, of San Francisco and Mr. Reed of the P. W. A. were also present.

Four bids were received for the construction of the building and H. L. Petersen of San Francisco was low bidder. Mr. Petersen's bid was $32,323. Moore & Roberts of San Francisco bid $34,940; E. T. Leiter & Sons of Oakland, $37,967 and Wm. Martin of San Francisco, $37,300.

Mr. Peterson's bid will be submitted to the PWA for their approval before the contract can be let. It is expected that their decision will be made this week to the trustees of the school.

At the meeting held last Friday it was found that the trustees could not dispose of the old building, as it was included in the specifications that the contractor who was awarded the bid would be required to demolish the old building and put the ground in condition for the erection of the new building.

The Truckee Outing Club had submitted a bid of $25.00 for the old building. The material from the building was to be used in the construction of the ice palace. A bid was also made by Jack Wolert who asked $750 to tear the building down and have all the material for his own use.

POLICE DOG SAVES LIVES OF TWO

M. W. Wilson, airways mechanician and Peter Borsi are recovering from a harrowing experience and give credit to Jerry, police dog owned by Walter Loynd for saving their lives.

On Monday morning Mr. Wilson and Mr. Borsi, who is employed during the winter months as a traveling companion for Mr. Wilson, started by the Cisco beacon. They left their car on the highway at about 9:30 in the morning and with Jerry started for the beacon. At the time the start was made the weather appeared to be clearing After covering the major part of the distance to the site, the weather suddenly changed and the wind, snow and low clouds obliterated all land marks. The site was not reached and when the return trip was attempted, no tracks could be found. Mr. Wilson was suffering from an injured knee and it was necessary for Mr. Borsi to break trail and assist Mr. Wilson. The skiis could not be used and had to be carried by the men. Mr. Borsi became helpless to find the return trail and then it was that Jerry, the police dog, came to their assistance and broke trail for them and led them to the highway where the car was parked. When the men reached the highway they were at the point of exhaustion along with being wet and cold. Mr. Wilson commends Mr. Borsi for his untiring efforts in making the return trip and has written to his superior officer in Oakland telling him of Mr. Borsi's assistance.

Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Borsi give the credit to Jerry, the police dog for saving their lives, as they were helpless in the raging storm.

Jerry accompanies Mr. Wilson on his trips around the territory and his familiarity with the country and his keen sense no doubt saved the two men from death.

Mr. and Mrs. John Terzik of Portola and Miss Stella Zorich were amoung those caught between the two snow slides on the Donner highway on Monday and were stalled for fifteen hours.

SKI TOURNAMENT STOPPED BY STORM

The blizzard which swept the region on Saturday night forced the postponement of the California Ski Association championship tourna ment on Sunday. The events as scheduled for Saturday were held despite stomy weather.

The Auburn Ski Club and Lake Tahoe Club were tied for first place as a result of the first days competition. The most important events, the Class A and B jumping, the downhill racing and the slalom were scheduled for the second day.

A. M. Henry, Jr. of Tahoe City, retained his Class C championship with jumps of 96 and 107 feet. Dave Renner of Tahoe City was second with jumps of 90 and 105 feet, and Carl Bechdolt, Jr., was third with jumps of 98 and 101 feet.

Oliver Hendrickson of Tahoe won first in Class D jumping with jumps of 60 and 52 feet, Ernest Fleming of Truckee placed second with jumps of 52 and 53 feet and Donald Talcott of Truckee placed third with jumps of 48 and 53 feet.

In the men's cross country race, Folke Nystrom placed first with a time of 1 hour, 48 minutes, 20 seconds and Ed Oppigard, second with two seconds behind. Both of these men are from Portola and joined the Auburn Ski Club three weeks ago. George Gustavson of Placerville, the state champion from last year, arrived too late to participate in the race.

The women's cross country race was not held as the only entrant was Mrs. Amy Rasmussen, last year's winner.

The California Ski Association gave approval to the postponement of events scheduled for Sunday and they will be held during the coming month. A committee headed by C. Edmunds will determine the new date.

Fishing Becoming A Mere Sissy Pastime

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— The he-man sport of fishing is on its way toward becoming a sissy pastime, in the opinion of Herbert C. Davis, executive officer of the fish and game commission.

Many anglers are too lazy to get out of their cars and cast, he told a luncheon club here in revealing demands of fishermen for paved highways right up to the banks of streams.

RIVER AGREEMENT NEARS FINAL STEP

Boca Site On The Little Truckee River Selected Irrigation Districts Will Hold Election For Their Approval.

The bureau of reclamation announced February 20th, the proposed form of the final Truckee river decree was in the hands of the justice department after having been approved by the secretary of the interior.

R. M. Patrick, the bureau's chief counsel, said the proposed decree had been in the department's possession for "about two weeks."

"There has been no sugn of action from that direction yet," he added, "but we are expecting word soon. I see no reason to fear it will not meet with approval of the justice authorities."

The decree, when and if it is approved by the justice department and by the water users of the Truckee-Carson and Washoe county conservation districts in a referendum election, will pave the way for upstream storage on the Truckee, Plans call for a million dollar dam, financed with federal funds, at the Boca site on the Little Truckee river.

Patrick said one reason for department of justice delay possibly could be attributed to the fact the decree had to be sent to the department's field representative at Denver, Ethelbert Ward. for study before being finally passed upon here. He said Ward was familiar with the Truckee river problem and that "he should be heard from soon ,if that is what is holding matters up."

Patrick said "only insignificant changes," were made in the proposed form of the decree by Secretary Ickes, but he declined to state what they were.

Ward Approves Agreement.

Informed by Ethelbert Ward, assistant attorney general in charge of government water cases, that he had approved the Truckee river agreement as to substance and form and had airmailed his report to the attorney general in Washington from Denver last Saturday night, officials of the irrigation district were hopeful that the attorney general would approve the agreement before the end of this week and thus clear the way for calling an election for water users to vote on the agreement.

If the attorney general's office approves the agreement the board of directors of the Washoe county irrigation district will meet this week it is planned, and set the election date, when the water users will vote on the agreement and also on a repayment contract in connection with the construction of the Little Truckee reservior.

R. M. Price, attorney for the local district, was advised by the United States attorney general's office that the reclamation service, the Indian service and the interior department had approved the proposed Truckee river decree of which the agreement between the various water users on the river is a part, and that it had been sent to Ward for his approval.

Ward was located in Denver by telephone and informed local officials that he had sent his approval to Washington.

Itinerant Woman Gets Transportation to S. F.

Dorothy Bryant transient picked up at Truckee Monday, Feb. 17 and taken to Nevada City on Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Tom Dolley, and wife as matron, was held under examination in the woman's ward of the county jail until last Thursday and then given transportation to San Francisco where she stated she has friends.

The woman gave indications of insanity when arrested, but after confinement in the jail for two days seemed to shake it off and she was sent away as the best method of disposing of her.

TAX CONFERENCE A FLOP

Governor Merriam's recent tax conference proved a decided "flop" insofar as immediate relief for the taxpayer is concerned, in the opinion of many California editors.

Result of the meeting, it was felt, gave little promise of producing a program to make the tax burden easier to bear.

"The state tax conference at Sacramento," said the Burbank Daily Review, "seems to have wound up like many such conferences—in hot air. A few months ago it appeared that another raid on the taxpayers was inevitable in order to head off bankruptcy. Conditions have picked up to such an extent that it now appears, at least in the minds of Governor Merriam and other officials, that returning prosperity will make it unnecessary to tack on additional taxes if the present tax setup is left as it is. This seems to have been the conclusion of the tax conference which brought about the decision not to do anything."

These reassurances, according to the Redwood City Tribune, "sound much like a declaration that a man found starving for want of food is not really so bad off after all, or at least would not be if it were not for his particular state of destitution. But there is that destitution! Things financially in the state government seem to be in a 'hell of a state,' and why not acknowledge it, even though the admission might not be so good for Governor Merriam's presidential aspirations? The bitter truth must be made known to all of us sooner or later, and the sooner it is made known the less bitter it will be."

Dealing with the "hard facts of state finances," the Long Beach Press Telegram believes "even though the official optimists are deluding neither the people nor themselves by predictions that the deficit will be 'only' so many millions on this date or that, the high cost of government will remain oppressive, even if the tax collectors, because of improving conditions, will be able to collect more money and so cut down the heretofore expected deficit. There is only one method by which the excessive cost of government in California can be lowered, and that is by overhauling the whole structure of state, county, city and school government, placing the total expenditures at a fair figure, considering the state's taxable wealth, and apportioning the costs justly, by a new, co-ordinated, simplified tax system."

The conference, comments the Madera Tribune, was called some two years too late to be of the greatest service to the taxpayers, adding:

"With the state facing the revenue crisis that was before it when the last legislative session opened, Merriam, knowing as he must have known that the problem was too great for his ability, could have assembled a few of the leading business men of the state, men whom he knew could be trusted to guard the public rather than selfish interests. A small group of this type would be competent and willing to propose activities that would give relief."

YES, WE MUST REGISTER

It seems there still prevails considerable confusion about registering to vote in California this year.

The Registrar has reported that numerous citizens think all the shouting about having to sign up is wrong, and that the whole thing is a mistake.

It is easy to understand their misapprehension, and unjust to blame them. After all they were told when they registered before, that the business was final, and they'd never have to do it again unless they went out of the State.

So they were told, then. However the last Legislative nullified the permanent registration law and called for this new registration.

Some say that it is actually nothing more than a test of party strength. Others believe that it is necessary for the elimination of names on the rolls which are not quite "correct." Either way, though, everyone must sign again this year in order to vote. There is no mistake about it.

One sure thing is that this will be one of the biggest turnouts in history for the primaries, and then the general presidential election later this year. And what an exciting political struggle it will be! You won't want to miss it.

So why not register now, before it's too late.

RECORD OF RELIEF

California's relief problem is in a critical stage at present, what with the ending of direct grants of Federal money and the curtailment of State funds available.

But while wrestling with the problems of the future, State administrator Frank Y. McLaughlin has paused long enough to report on the work done under the now defunct SERA up to the time WPA began taking over its job.

The report will constitute something of a surprise to many who felt that little if anything was being accomplished by SERA works. Actually the achievements are remarkable in view of all the obstacles McLaughlin and his staff had to buck.

Here are some of the items: Total miles of road constructed, 3993; bridges, 96 constructed, 49 improved; school houses, 11 constructed, 138 improved; fire houses, 15; city and county halls, 11; other buildings, 32; sewers constructed, 162 miles; irrigation ditches, 138 miles; water mains, 125 miles; children's playgrounds, constructed 37, improved 558; large parks constructed, 3480 acres, improved, 12,291 acres; trees planted, 192,000; miles of highway beautified, 1220; airports constructed, 11, improved, 36.

These are only a few, mind you. The whole is a picture of a truly gigantic undertaking, one that has left some lasting good.

FEBRUARY IS SPRING IN CATALONIA

Spring comes early in Catalonia and makes its presence felt even in the streets of Barcelona before the year is many days old. By the middle of February the cold is over. In the dawn of a February day a tinkling of goat-bells sounds through the streets as in the growing light the many herds, large and small, are driven in from the hills by long-bloused peasants, or women in bright-coloured dresses, yellow, blue, red, with large white kerchiefs. The iron corrugated shutters are drawn up with a slow rasping from the shop-windows, the humble shops advance their stalls and baskets of fruit and vegetables on to the pavement, and in the little wooden kiosks the first morning papers are heaped in neatly folded piles fresh from the press. Workmen, carrying their day's provisions in a knotted handkerchief, pass silent-footed in their sandals, and women hasten, basket on arm, to early market. On the hills round the city the silence is unbroken save for a rustling of wind among the pines. On the level ground along the bases of the hills the almond-trees in flower are as a morning frost on the face of the earth, but the air is warm and the sky already a deep blue. On rising ground every leafless twig, every almond-blossom, every silvery-grey branchlet of olive is seen chiselled distinctly against the sky. Down a steep path of rust-red earth and rocks, bordered by tall hedges of blue-green aloe, the delicious colour of the great spiked leaves of aloe, a peasant-woman comes hurrying with a great open basket overflowing with mimosa and white jonquils, carnations and violets, to be displayed presently on one of the stalls of the Rambla de las Flores. Peasants in shirts of intense blue, brown corduroy trousers and black saches are at work in their little plots of vegetables and flowers. The city and harbour of Barcelona are half hidden in a light morning mist, but on the other side of Montjuich the sea is silver and blue, and beyond a wide space of dreary flats, the little river Llobregat flows beneath a line of bare hills; a thin gleam of silver, to the sea. The hills round Barcelona are bare and dry, without a stream, bare beneath the tufted pines which even in the early morning throw their round patches of shadow black in the sunshine. Here and there some whin is in flower, or a few bushes of broom are tipped with yellow in flower too a few dwarf asphodels. Upon the steep and slippery hillside are several stragglers with handkerchiefs knotted to the end of a stick in search of pine-cones and various berries and mushrooms.—Aubrey F. G. Bell, in "A Pilgrim in Spain."

Politically Speaking

By GEARGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Gov. Frank F. Merriam puzzled some of his ardent republican supporters when he praised President Roosevelt during an address delivered to a church gathering in Sacramento.

Merriam told his audience that he believed future generations would regard President Roosevelt as a great leader, and he pointed out that Lincoln was critized severely while in office but become famous in history.

Conservative republicans gulped read the newspapers and learned that Merriam had indicated President Roosevelt had been chosen divinely as the man who should lead the nation during these troublesome times.

Democrats gasped and smiled, thinking how effective words to that effect will look on billboards next fall. Republicans thought about the same thing but did not smile so much.

Some of Merriam's close political advisers, after the first shock of the extraordinary development, began to regard it as a "smart thing." They predicted it would gain Merriam a great many more friends than enemies.

Despite the fact Merriam would like to have the California republican delegation instructed to support his candidacy for the nomination at the national convention in June, the governor is not basing everything on that possibility and he realizes that he probably will serve out his term as chief executive of California. As governor, it is necessary for him to work in harmony with the federal administration in order to obtain aid for public works and unemployment relief. If the present federal administration continues another four years, Merriam does not want to be regarded as unfriendly.

His comment concerning President Roosevelt placed him in the peculiar position of a potential republican candidate for president praising the man whose position he sought. But it also promised to gain him democratic friends who possibly voted for him last year just because his opponent was Utton Sinclair. It could not harm him with the republican state central committee, his friends felt, because the committee has opposed him, anyway, in his indirect drive for an instructed delegation.

'He won't lose a thing and he might gain a great deal" seems to be the concensus of his friends after several days of thought devoted to his Roosevelt reference.

Refusal of the Townsend organization to enter into any third party agreements or to support presidential candidates who pledged themselves to the pension plan was expected to help clarify the democratic primary situation in California.

There were threats some weeks ago that the primary ballot would carry three Roosevelt tickets, one regular, one pledging support for the Townsend plan and one supporting the EPIC organization. Removal of the Townsend angle and evidence that EPIC revolt may be smoothed over led to belief that present mix-ups would be straightened out before May 5.

B. L. Eldridge of Los Angeles disagrees with legislative promises that the state income tax would be about one-fourth as stiff as the federal tax.

In a letter to the United Press, he said he had to pay nothing under the federal tax, but $49.63 under the state income tax plan. Mrs. Eldridge's federal tax was $17.33, and her state tax $23.78. He could not figure how those tax returns could be called "one fourth the federal rate."

General references to "one fourth the federal tax" came from the fact the state rate for the average income is one per cent, while the federal rate is four per cent. There are more exemptions under the federal tax, however.

School teachers, having to worry about income tax returns in California for the first time, have found that they cannot deduct from their gross income amounts spent attending summer schools or doing other work to improve their ability as teachers. This expense, tax officials have decreed, must be considered as "personal" and not deductable.

Spotlight Hunter To Recover Automobile

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Authority of the state fish and game division to seize an automobile because a spotlight attached to it was used for illegal hunting was denied in a decision of the third district court of appeals on file here.

The opinion was handed down in a suit brought by Frank Santos to recover his car, confiscated on order of a Lake county justice of the peace. Santos previously had pleaded guilty to using an artificial light in hunting.

Conceding the division's right to sieze property illegally employed by hunters, the court ruled against sezure of the entire machine when only the spotlight was illegally used.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swanee

Tahoe's State Ski Meet is over and a bitter disappointment it proved, with old man Winter sending his worst storm of the season on Sunday, the day scheduled for the most important events. Not more than 70 of the 101 entrants made their way to Tahoe at all, due to the state wide storm conditions. Only a fraction of the enormous crowd anticipated attended, and the liabilities of the club will run far ahead of it's assets when the final curtain is rung down on the big meet. The A and B jumps, slalom, down mountain and novice events will be postponed until some time in March when weather will be more dependable. The men's Cross Country held at 11 a. m. as scheduled Saturday morning, was taken by Folky Nystrom in 1 hour, 48 minutes and 20 seconds. Ed Oppigard, (at first declared the winner but later relegated to second place) trailing him in only 2 seconds behind his time, and Andrew Karo, third in 1 hour, 51 minutes and 2 seconds. All were from the Auburn Club. Bud Owens Truckee boy, member of the Tahoe Club, made it in 8th in 2hours, 10 minutes and 19 seconds. George Gustavson of Placerville, last year's state champion, was late getting to Tahoe due to the storm and did not enter. The winner of this event was awarded a bronze trophy mounted on a walnut plaque. Only 11 cross country racers were entered and all made a 15 mile trip instead of the proposed 10 miles because Lief Nielsen, who laid out the course, became confused in the young blizzard which raged Saturday morning and lost his bearings. The racers, unable to see the snow-covered red cloth signals, followed his tracks and covered an additional 5 miles. It was a gruelling test with wind blowing, snow falling and the snow underfoot wet and sticky.

In the afternoon the C and D jumps were held, Junior Henry of Tahoe retaining his state championship in this division. He made two jumps of 96 and 107 feet, David Renner of Tahoe, a new C threat this year, placing second with jumps of 90 and 105 feet, Carl Bechdolt Jr. third with 98 and 101 feet. This correspondent's greatest thrill during Saturday's events was an exciting ride up to Ski Hill Canyon on the Standard Oil Company's loud speaker car which was driven, steered, piloted and cajoled into climbing the slippery, treacherous road of snow made passable by Bob Watson and his caterpillar tractor which had been especially equipped for the job by bolting 2x4 blocks onto the steel tracks. Bud Bently, Standard's fluent announcer was main pilot, his co-pilots being F. H. Brown, Standard's agent at Truckee, who was responsible for the loaning of the broadcasting equipment, and Lou Chesborough of the Auburn Ski Club. Stuck for more than an hour in the soft snow of the hill near the warming house, it was almost dark before they reached their position at Olympic Hill and set up the equipment for Sunday's big events. And then all their hard, nervewracking labors were for naught as the finish of the meet was postponed and a good three feet of fresh snow made the descent to the highway even more hazardous. Standard Oil Company and it's employees are certainly entitled to a generous measure of gratitude for their willing and generous cooperation under such difficult circumstances.

On Sunday the banquet for the skiiers was held at Tahoe Inn at 1:00 P. M. about 125 persons attending. Medals were presented the winners and a jolly time enjoyed by those present. Many could not be present due to the closed highways.

Tahoe residents heaved grateful sighs on Monday morning as they woke to find clearing skies and the sun trying to break through the gloom of overhanging clouds. But relief was short-lived as around 10 A. M. another snow storm broke out a fresh. At this writing, (Monday) 82 inches of snow lies on the ground at Tahoe City with at least 2 to 3 feet more in Homewood, Sunnyside District and outlying sections. The snowfall for the past three day storm was from 31 inches at Tahoe City, to 36-40 inches in outlying sections. Precipitation over the same period was 4.38 inches bringing the total for the season to 28.18, considerably ahead of last year's figure at this same time. The lake raise to 6223.70 an increase of .39 foot. since the 22nd of Feb. when it stood at 6223.51. The storm does not appear over as yet, spasmodic winds and steady snowfall prevailing at this writing.

The Tahoe region fairly swarmed over the week end with out-of-town visitors who covered likely slopes with their skiing parties. Many had difficulty in securing accomodations over the holidays. Among visitors were Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Munter all of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Van Luven of Auburn, came to take in the state meet and incidentally visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H.Hull of Tahoe City. A delightful week end was enjoyed despite the steady snowfall.

Mrs. H. H. Hull returned last week from a visit to her parents' home in Wellington, Kansas. Her father was gravely ill with pneumonia and in bed the entire duration of her visit which prevented her from visiting other relatives and friends in nearby towns as previously planned. We believe she is the first Tahoeite to view the famous picture "Rose Marie" filmed locally last fall and awaited so eagerly by town folks. Her verdict was an enthusiastic confirmation of it's four star qualities. She declared the story not only thrillingly romatic, but the background shots and cloud effects absolutely perfect. Her trip was not as enjoyable as it might have been because of the weather which, for 10 out of the 17 days there, ranged from 2 to 10 below zero, the worst cold wave to strike Kansas in 50 years. Her son Dean who manned the switchboard most efficiently during her absence, left on Monday with her visitors for a vacation stay in San Francisco.

Al Fanger of Tahoe motored up from his home in Sacramento over the week end with a party of 8 young folks, which included his brother Frank and Miss Agnes Soll who paid her parents a visit. The group who came in one of Al's big trucks securely enclosed by a large waterproof tent, started a new vogue in 'snow schooners.' The trip was a bit difficult due to the deep snow encountered on the highways here, but the crowd left on Monday morning after a jolly week end at his summer home near Tahoma.

Much consternation was voiced on Sunday night as motorists sought to leave for home and found their cars ineffectual in the deep snow on the highway. The plow came through from Truckee around 2 o'clock Sunday, but the wind filled it partly in almost as soon as it had passed. The plow continued on through Tahoe City to Brockway and was reported to have broken down out there. Another plow left Truckee after 5:00 P. M. and opened up a two way road, clearing roads south of town after 1:00 A. M. on Monday morning many visitors waited up until it came and then left for their homes in an endeavor to be at work on Monday morning. A 40 foot slide was reported near Squaw Creek on Sunday night, but this was moved by the plows in several hours time. More than a dozen persons were detained at Worden's Ward Creek Camp, and at Mantifel's English Villa 28 were reported waiting for the roads to open.

Among out of town visitors were Henry F. Droste and daughter Patricia who motored up for the state meet. Gene Rogers returned for the big day and Bill Mayhew of Clarksville spent several days in town while his wife visited her daughter, Mrs. Joe King at Reno.

William Moore, editor of the Stanford Press and Phillip M. Robertson of Stanford motored up for the holidays and were guests of Chris Nielsen at his Sunnyside home.

Lloyd Shebley was host on Saturday morning at a breakfast party. His guests included Miss Virginia and Buster West of Ukiah, who spent the week end in town and Jim and Walter Mandeville.

Mrs. I. J. Martinson of Brockway was called away to Grand Forks, North Dakota some weeks ago because of illness of relatives. Two weeks ago her husband was summoued as his wife was sent to a hospital in serious condition, the exact nature of her illness unknown. No word has been received from her friends here since that time.

Mrs. Laura Fly of Sacramento, mother of Mrs. James F. Ferbuson of the McClatchey estate, who is visiting her daughter's home here, had never seen a sno-go, so she asked to be awakened when and if, one came along. So on Monday morning in the wee small hours, her son-in-law called her up to watch the monster of the night go by. But something they hadnot counted upon was the hard snow which came right at them breaking through the window glass, nearly scaring the wits out of the visitor and landing broken bits of the pane all over the baby's bed and face. Luckily, no damage was done to the child. Mr. Ferguson spent some little time shoveling out the wet snow and picking splinters of glass out of their bare feet.

An event which caused much excitment at Tahoe on Saturday morning almost eclipsing the state meet, was the collapse of Homewood Clubhouse a unit of Homewood Hotel, for years a popular rendezvous of young and old on the west side of the lake. Ernest Pomin, who was caretaker of the property, said that the building had been shoveled only recently and had been inspected only two days before. The roof held no more than 3 feet of snow, but the heavy rains of Friday evidently made it too heavy and the walls fell out, collapsing the building. It was approximately 40 x 100 feet, and the loss is estimated at around $15,000. Frank Harden who had leased the building last summer from Mrs. A. W. Jost of Sacramento, the owner of the hotel property and clubhouse, estimates his loss at $1,000 or more in furnishings.

Huge Ice Castle Near South Pole

NORDEN NEWS

The many hundred holiday visitors to this region last week end will not soon forget the blizzard and snowstorm which they witnessed on Saturday and Sunday. Numerous minor difficulties were experienced by some when their cars became stalled and had to be shoveled out, and radiators had to be thawed out before they could make their return trip home. This was one of the heaviest snow storms in several years.

A blizzard like snowstorm raged over the Sierra on Monday night and disrupted highway travel for several hours. The snow pack was raised to 205 inches, the heaviest pack for this time of year since the record fall of 1911. The Southern Pacific Company were able to maintain two way traffic during the storm without difficulty with all trains on time. The spreaders, rotaries and flangers worked all night long and kept the tracks clear of snow. The work was under the supervision of Superintendent Hack assisted by Trainmasters Jennings, Pearce and Hooson.

Robert Ralston visited with his parents at Norden over the Washington Birthday holiday. He was accompanied by a popular young matron of Roseville who visited Miss Betty Ralston. Robert is an expert tennis player having won the tennis championship while attending Glendale High School last year and also winning this honor at Sacramento Junior College last semester.

Kenneth Lyons assisted by a capable staff of snow shovelers are relieving the snow from the roof of the Norden Garage which is breaking in from the heavy snows of the winter. All cars have been moved to safety.

John Kinsey of Truckee and working in B & B 108 Norden is reported confined to his bed with a cold. An early recovery is hoped for by all.

John, George and William Backarich from all accounts thoroughly enjoyed the Washington Birthday dance last Saturday night in Truckee. They missed their breakfast in getting to work on time, account of car trouble in ascending the grade.

"Ironman" Joseph Peters was a business visitor to Sacramento early this week for needed winter rain and snow slothes. He returned with the best that money could purchase and the best in his career.

All the stalled tourists in their cars were able to dig out from under the heavy snows and proceed westward Monday during a lull in the storm from and about Norden.

The Tourist and Sierra Ski Clubs Lodges were filled with members over Washington's Birthday, with all having much experience in their lines.

Harold Boomer did not experience any delay in returning to Wheatland last Sunday afternoon and praises highly the anti-freeze in his radiator.

Recent visitors to Norden included Sydney Snyder and family and other friends from Sacramento who are occupants of their home "Gilfelhaus" at Tunnel Six.

Elmer Wilson has returned to his place of employment after several days visiting in Yreka.

Thomas Eversalt with his knowledge of finances returned to Norden with an 8-cylinder car early last week, and it's a beauty.

Oakes Hensley who has been employed at Marysville visited with his family at Norden two days.

Charles Vanderford was laid up a couple of days last week with a cold but is now able to be about.

County To Get Share Of Vehicle Fees

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Nevada county will receive $7,950,-80 as its share of the apportionment of motor vehicle registration fees in 1935, according to a report of the state department of motor vehicles.

California motorists, the report revealed, contributed $2,917,918 during the year by way of license fees to develop county roads and a similar amount to build and maintain state highways.

"The 65 per cent of vehicle registration levies allotted equally in 1935 to state and county highway development, or $5,835,836 exceeds by $391,638 the amount proportioned in 1934 when 2,080,884 vehicles were registered in comparison with the records of 2,254,828 registrations last year," the report stated.

County treasurers received $2,782,-793 in the August settlement and the remaining $135,125 of the 1935 apportionment from vehicle funds now is being paid.

Building Of State Shows Vast Increase

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Indicative of improved economic conditions throughout the state, the total value of building permits issued in 51 California cities in 1935 was $96,243,025 an increase of 93.7 per cent over the previous year, according to a compilation made by the California state chamber of commerce.

The 25 cities issuing the largest value of permits made a total increase of 94.5 per cent, while 26 smaller cities showed a total gain of 85.5 per cent.

From the standpoint of percentage of change, the city of Burbank led the list with a gain of 313 per cent. Alhambra and Compton were next with 194 per cent increases.

CHAPTER II

"Help! Hey—let me go! Help!" Jim Kearney stopped his whistling and stuck his head out of the stagecoach window to see where those despairing cries came from.

A bullet whizzed past as he looked out, but not before he had caught sight of a little group of Spaniards who were standing around a tall tree some distance from the road, busily preparing for a "necktie party" or hanging.

A little distance from the group their leader sat astride his white horse. Although small of stature he was finely dressed and seemed to be in complete command of the situation.

"That's an American those Spaniards are stringing up," shouted Kearney as he jerked his head back into the coach. "Hey, driver, Stop-We've got to help him."

"That's Carlos and his Vigilantes." answered the driver as he whipped up his horses. "I don't want to fool with them. Besides I've got gold aboard."

"Go ahead then, If you're scared of your skin," cried Kearney. "I'm staying here." As he spoke he jerked open the door of the coach and leaped out onto the road.

Meantime the man about to be hanged was pleading wildly for his life as one end of a rope was pieced around his neck and the other end tossed over the limb of a tree.

"Don't do it!" he screamed. "I'll give back everything. I'll pay damages—I'll pay—"

"And how will you pay for the men you killed in cold blood. Joe Kincaid," the bell-like voice of Don carlos rang out. "How will you pay for the wives and daughters you—"

"They did that against my orders," sobbed Kincaid, stretching out his bound hands to the imperturbable masked figure which judged him. "I'll get out of here and take them with me—"

For answer Don Carlos waved one gloved hand. His men gripped Kincaid and seated him upon a horse. The rope around his neck was drawn taut. Then one of the vigilantes hit the animal a resounding blow and it bounded away, leaving the land-grabber dangling in mid-air.

At the same moment there was a thunder of hoofs and Jim Kearney, mounted on one of the vigilante's own horses, galloped into the scene. Before the onlookers knew what had happened he swept up to Kincaid, slashed the rope in two with his hunting knife, caught him before he fell and swung him across the saddle. Spurring his horse forward, he disappeared into the darkness as the Carlos band came to life. Some of them opened fire with their rifles while others made a dash for their horses.

In spite of its head start, the horse the two Americans were riding soon began to tire under its double burden. The sound of pursuit came closer.

"We'll never make it, carrying double," said Kincaid's rescuer at last. "You're the one they're after. so I'm leaving you. Good luck, stranger—Here I go." As he spoke he slid out of the saddle and dashed for shelter at the side of the road. Crouching behind a tree, a revolver in each hand, the young man watched the pursuit go past. For a moment he drew a bead on Don Carlos as the latter went by, conspicuous on his white horse. But he shook his head and did not pull the trigger. He could not shoot a man in cold blood.

A light was twinkling from a building some distance down the road and he started toward it, hoping to borrow a horse on which to ride into Monterey.

As he approached he made out that the house was a small place, dilapidated and obviously seldom lived in. But the light burned brightly inside and beside the door stood what he could have sworn was the same white horse that Don Carlos had been riding not ten minutes before.

Determined to capture the bandit single-handed, Kearney tiptoed forward, revolver in hand. Leveling his gun, he swung a terrific kick at the rickety door. It burst open and his cry of "Hands Up" died in his throat at the sight which met his eyes.

A girl dressed for the fiesta, stood staring at him with wide and frightened black eyes.

"Madre de Dios," she screamed, throwing up her hands. Then as the newcomer was completely taken aback she regained her composure and asked demurely: "You are looking for someone?"

"Step aside," answered Kearney as he tried to tear his eyes from this astonishing vision. "I'm looking for a man."

"What a relief," she laughed. "I thought it was jewelry."

"Where is he?" The girl's visitor pushed his way into the hut. Then, pointing his gun at a wardrobe, the only place in the bare room which offered a possible hiding place, he thundered "Come out of there, or I'll let you have it."

"That would spoil so many dresses," interruped the girl. Calmly she stepped forward and opened the wardrobe, revealing nothing but a few clothes. "Not even a moth there," she teased.

"I suppose you want to look under the bed." she continued with adazzling smile. "My grandmother does that every night."

"Where is he?" Kearney was completely stumped. "Don't tell me that you came here on Don Carlos' horse." He pointed out of the window, then choked. The horse was gone! "Damnation," he gasped.

"You'll have to scrub your mouth with soap and water," she warned. "Where's the horse?" he ran his hand desperately through his dark hair. "Now don't say 'What horse?' There was a horse out there and you know darned well it wasn't mine. By the way, is this where you live?"

"Oh no. I am the daughter of Don Pascual Castro, whose rancho is ten miles farther out from Monterey. But sometimes I stop here to break the trip into town and to freshen up a bit. This shack is empty most of the time because it's supposed to be haunted."

"By a white horse- Oh, come on now, what's the answer."

"A great many Americans are mad," she replied solemnly. "You're quite sure you're not just a little bit —" One slim forefinger tapped her forehead. "Or perhaps you've been in the sun without your hat. That brings on delusions."

"It doesn't bring on white horses." He couldn't suppress a smile.

"It might. If you were thirsty you'd see cool water and palm trees. You're miles from town. You need a horse so you see one."

"Is that why I'm seeing you?"

"Oh, I'm a stern reality," she answered blushing prettily. "Not very stern, of course(but I can't talk to you all day. That's the road to Monterey. Could I lend you one of my hats?"

"Lady," Kearney looked at her with grudging admiration. "If I'm groggy, it's not from the sun." He bowed and stalked away while Rosita looked after him with a happy, mischievous smile.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS RELIEF PLANS

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27—(UP)—Direct relief for unemployable unemployed persons will become a joint county-state problem within a few months if plans of state officials are carried through to completion.

During the past two years, relief work has been directed by the State Emergency Relief Administration using federal and state funds. Discontinuance of federal aid for direct relief, however, threw the financial burden on the state, and only $2,000,000 monthly is available for the work from now until July 1, 1937.

One result of the decrease was Gov. Frank F. Merriam's order that overhead expenses be trimmed drastically. When the SERA was spending around $1,000,000 monthly for relief, $950,000 went for salaries and other incidental expenses of administration. When the available output dropped to $4,000,000 in January, the high overhead continued, and a month later the cost of distributing $2,000,000 was $700,000.

Merriam renewed his demands for lower expenses, and in casting about for a more economical method of handling relief, he considered the possibilities of turning relief work over to the state department of social welfare and the counties themselves.

Under a plan considered by state officials, actual relief work would be handled by the counties, with the social welfare department serving as the administration head. The state would furnish $2,000,000 monthly, distributing the money to counties in proportion to the number of cases on relief. County officials would handle the actual payment of the dole to persons on relief, and the state social welfare department would supervise the general program.

Under that arrangement, it was felt the overhead expense could be trimmed to practically nothing, since the welfare department and county officials would be expected to assume the added duties with little or no additional personnel.

Eventual accomplishment of the proposed plan would mean the abolishment of the SERA, the emergency relief commission and the $700,000 worth of jobs now provided by the SERA. Considerable pressure brought by present relief administration employes to prevent the change was said to be one factor delaying adoption of the progrom.

Sugar consumption requirements in the United States for this year are estimated at 6,434,088 short tons.

NEVADA COUNTY PRODUCES HONEY

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— California's honey industry pointed toward the $2,000,000 class in 1935 when the state production totaling 22,115,000 pounds, including 9,000 pounds in Nevada county.

The production, according to H. M. Kerbs, supervising apiary entomologist of the state department of agriculture, was well above the average for the past five years and due to higher prices and an increased yield, the total value was $1,350,000, or almost four times that of 1934.

"A feature of the 1935 report are the figures showing the remarkable comeback of the honey industry in southern California, that district having been hit hard by the unusually dry conditions," Krebs said.

"In 1934 San Diego county bees produced no honey, in fact it was necessary that honey be fed them to keep them alive. Last year, however, the county led the state in honey production with an output of 4,200,000 pounds."

A remarkable gain also was registered in Los Angeles county where the production increased from 846,000 pounds in 1934 to 2,944,000 pounds last year. Comparable gains were reported in Riverside, San Bernardino, Orange and Ventura counties.

Other counties where the increase in the 1935 honey production was outstanding included Alameda, Butte, Colusa, Contra Costa, Fresno, Imperial, Kern Inyo, Kings, Monterey, Sacramento, San Luis Obispo, Shasta, Sutter, Tehama, Tulare and Yolo.

State records show the honey production of other years included 9,720,000 pounds in 1934 and 12,196,000 pounds in 1933.

The substantial increase in production last year was attributed mainly to improve growing conditions, and in view of rains this year another good year was anticipated for 1936.

GASOLINE CONTINUES INCREASED SALES

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Continuing the upward trend which has been evident with but one exception for the past 15 consecutive months, sale of gasoline in California poured $3,466,642 into the highway fund for the month of January, Fred E. Stewart, member of the state board of equalization, reported today.

The increase over the January sales of 1935 amounted to 15,623,617 gallons, or $464,021.

Stewart said he believed low retail prices of gasoline, coupled with unusually favorable weather the first month of the year, had something to do with the increase. But he pointed to the 15-month record as conclusive evidence that conditions generally were picking up.

The total collected in gasoline taxes in 1935 exceeded expectations by more than $2,000,000, and it appeared that a new record would be established in 1936 if sales continue on the upgrade, Stewart said.

Since the beginning of the 19th century this country has produced more than one billion ounces of gold, 12 billion ounces of silver, 40 billion pounds of zinc, 100 billion pounds of copper and 136 billion pounds of lead.

Christian Science

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson--Sermon Sunday, March 1, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder" (Isa. 9: 6). Other Bible citations will include: "And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments: And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen:"(Luke 24: 3-6 to :).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The resurrection of the great demonstrator of God's power was the proof of his final triumph over body and matter, and gave full evidence of divine Science,—evidence so important to mortals. The belief that man has existence or mind separate from God is a dying error. This error Jesus met with divine Science and proved its nothingness" (p. 42).

BOARD TO SELL REPOSSESSED HOMES

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27—(UP)—Sale of 1900 repossessed homes owned by the state veterans' welfare board appeared assured today.

Indications that the real estate market in California had improved to such an extent that there would be no trouble in selling the repossessed properties valued at approximately $8,300,000 were seen in current conditions.

At the last meeting of the board it was reported that more than $1,000,000 had been loaned as a part of the home and farm loan program during January and officials believed that sale of the repossessed properties would be beneficial to the program at this time.

The board had the following repossessed homes by districts:

Sacramento, 98 valued at nearly $400,000; Fresno, 36 valued at more than $140,000; Oakland, 296 valued at approximately $1,300,000; San Francisco, 263, valued at nearly $1,150,000, and Los Angeles, 1,187 valued at nearly $5,270,000.

Vets In Folsom Will Receive Bonus

FOLSOM PRISON Feb. 27—(UP)—War veterans in Folsom prison will receive between $15,000 and $18,000 as their share of the bonus, according to prison officials.

It was estimated that out of the 2,844 convicts on the prison rolls, approximately 300 are veterans of the World War and will be eligible to receive the bonus payment.

Officials pointed out that the the bonus payment will represent only a small part of the money held for inmates of the prison, estimated to total at the present time approximately $80,000.

The money represents legacies, gifts and other sources of income available to the prisoners since they were sentenced to the prison devoted to two-time losers.

Robie of Auburn were re-elected by unanimous vote. Vice-presidents elected were: Eugene Barton of Mt. Lassen, Olaf Tellefsen of Los Angeles, George Stark of Yosemite and Joe Henry of Tahoe City. It has been the practice for retiring Class A jumpers to drop back to the B class jumping. It was agreed that this was an injustice and a discouragement to the younger men and should be done away with.

A resolution calling the attention of the state forestry service to the increasing need of ski trails was adopted.

In the film Sparks plays the part of "Scoop," a press agent hired by Jack Oakie to keep his name out of the papers. The two, with Penner and Lynne Overman, undertake to operate a girl's seminary which Oakie has inherited from a rich aunt and end up by transforming the old-fashioned, academic institution into a "charm school."

HOBART MILLS

The fifth of the series of seven evenings of cards being sponsored by the local Parent Teachers association will be held on Thursday evening at the schoolhouse, with Mrs. V. C. The Parent Teachers association met at the schoolhouse on Friday evening with Mrs. Bernice Murray, the vice president presiding in the absence of Mrs. E. K. Wilson who is absent on her vacation. The nominating committee reported almost a full list of officers and hope to have all the officers named for the next meeting. It was decided to sponsor another series of card parties following the present series, the committees were appointed for each party. It was decided that it was not necessary to employ a second teacher for the remainder of this term, and that the money on hand could be used to a better advantage next year. The ladies voted to procure a first aid kit to be placed in the school building.

Mrs. H. G. Seibold entertained the Friday Bridge Club members at her home on Friday afternoon of last week, with the following ladies present: Mrs. Roy Gates, Mrs. F. A. Wilson, Mrs. V. C. Sales Tax To Bring In Large Revenue

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— In view of steadily improving economic conditions California may expect an annual income of $67,500,000 from the 3 per cent retail sales tax, in the opinion of Fred E. Stewart, member of the state board of equalization.

Stewart pointed out that collections since the law became effective August 1, 1933, have amounted to $123,285,189, or an average of $4,740,000 a month.

"For the past six months, however, this revenue has averaged $5,600,000 a month so that it is reasonable to believe that the future annual yield from this source will be at least $67,500,000," Stewart said.

"Contrary to pessimistic predictions, business has not been hurt by the sales tax. Recent holiday trade has been the best for years. There is substantial improvement in practically every branch of industry.

"Compared with states in which no sales taxes are levied, recovery in California has been every bit as fast, and frequently faster," Stewart claimed. "No one can say truthfully that the sales tax has been bad for business in California."

Stewart described as "unthinkable" any attempt to replace the $67,500,000 annual income by loading this burden together with other taxes, on land owners.

"It would stagnate industry and cause greater distress than has ever been known in this state," he insisted.

Relative to the substitution of transactions tax or gross income tax, Stewart said:

"Experience with such taxes elsewhere has disclosed that they are much more expensive to administer, involve many more complications and have an unfortunate tendency to pyramid. Practical and legal complications would be multiplied under any such system of taxation. There would be intricate problems affecting interstate and foreign trade."

Miss Eloise Colton and K. O. Bohme to Marry

The marriage of Miss Eloise Colton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Colton of Berkeley and Brockway, Lake Tahoe to Karl O. Bohme, Jr. of Tahoe Vista will be held March 21st at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Colton is a graduate of the University of California. She is well known in the Brockway district where her parents have had a summer home for many years.

Mr. Bohme has extensive property holdings in the Tahoe Vista district and owns the Bohme Ice Company.

Principal Highways To Be Protected

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— The state's annual campaign to eliminate fire hazards along principal highways has been started, according to W. A. Smith, assistant maintenance engineer.

The spraying and burning of roadside vegetation for the 1936 season will involve protective measures along 1,100 miles of state highways at an annual expense of approximately $80,000.

"The purpose of this roadside spraying and burning is to provide a firebreak between the highway and adjoining property, Smith said.

"Its justification lies in the protection afforded the property owner or public interests against the increased hazard due to volume of motor traffic, as well as in prevention of erosion damage to highways at locations where natural cover may be destroyed by fire, and also in the fact that insurance rates on grain lands are thereby kept to a lower figure.

"It must be borne in mind that efforts are directed simply to create a firebreak. It is not desired to sterilize the soil, since at many locations it may not be necessary to spray another season."

State officials said there was no question as to the beneficial results of the work, started first ni 1929.

"Prior to the initiation of this protective measure, a number of serious fires could be anticipated each season. Last year not a single fire of any magnitude was reported as having started along the state highway," a report stated.

Records of the highway division so that the cost of spraying averages from $50 to $60 per road mile of two 9-foot strips, and burning operations cost about $20 per road mile, or a total of $75 to $80.

In addition to the areas where spraying is necessary, a considerable milage also is protected during regular maintenance operations by blading, disking and mowing.

BUMPER CROPS PREDICTED FOR 1936

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27 —(UP)— Clearing weather in the near future will place California growers of truck crops in an advantageous position to produce bumper crops in 1936, according to the federal-state crop reporting service.

"Recent rains did much to brighten the spring pea prospects, especially in the northern coastal plantings," the report stated. "Spring cauliflower is making a good fast growth and quality promises to be excellent. Delta asparagus growers report the "grass" coming on rapidly but fields are too muddy to do much cutting. With a little warm, drying weather, the season will be in full swing.

"There has been some loss by flooding reported by spinach growers in the low areas, but this is only a small percentage of the acreage and, in general, the crop is expected to come through in good shape.
